Key observations

Tested page

Mobile loading performance

The tested page scored 39/100 for mobile performance in PageSpeed Insights.

This laboratory score is a reason to investigate, not a measurement of lost enquiries or bookings.

Next step: Ask your developer to inspect the main loading bottlenecks. Check the journey from your main offer to enquiry or booking on a phone.

Preferred page versions

These settings can be intentional. The crawl does not establish whether Google lists a page.

Next step: Tell your website provider which offers should be found in search. Have them check these settings before changing anything.

Missing search descriptions

Clear wording can help people distinguish your offers. Search engines may choose different text.

Next step: Review whether these pages belong with the current offers before editing descriptions. Confirm their purpose with the owner; retain intentional archives.

Image links to review

Useful image descriptions support visitors using screen readers. Image delivery and layout also deserve a check on a phone.

Next step: Ask your developer to check whether these image-only links have accessible names.

Missing main headings

Headings help visitors and screen-reader users understand the offer. These observations do not prove a ranking problem.

Next step: Ask your editor to check the affected pages. Make the main offer clear and arrange headings in a useful reading order.
