Key observations

Tested page

Mobile loading performance

Example page: Homepage

The tested page scored 35/100 for mobile performance in PageSpeed Insights.

This laboratory score is a reason to investigate, not a measurement of lost enquiries or bookings.

Next step: Ask your developer to inspect the main loading bottlenecks. Check the journey from your main offer to enquiry or booking on a phone.

5 pages to review

Missing main headings

Headings help visitors and screen-reader users understand the offer. These observations do not prove a ranking problem.

Next step: Ask your editor to check the affected pages. Make the main offer clear and arrange headings in a useful reading order.

Missing search descriptions

Clear wording can help people distinguish your offers. Search engines may choose different text.

Next step: Start with a main offer page. Check that its title and description match the offer, location and audience; ask your website editor to adjust wording where useful.

Example page: Kitecourse

Clear wording can help people distinguish your offers. Search engines may choose different text.

Next step: Check the preferred canonical relationship, including the homepage, before deciding whether these pages need distinct titles.

7 pages to review

Missing image dimensions

Check whether image dimensions are set to help avoid unexpected layout shifts.

Next step: Ask your developer to check the image dimensions and layout on the affected pages.

Image descriptions to review

Useful image descriptions support visitors using screen readers. Image delivery and layout also deserve a check on a phone.

Next step: Ask your editor to describe informative images; decorative images may need empty descriptions. Ask your developer to check image sizes and layout where flagged.
